Take Your Career to a New Degree: BBA with a Focus on Project Management

Texas Wesleyan's School of Business introduces a BBA with a concentration in Project Management including courses specializing in government contracting.

With an abundance of favorable weather, the Dallas/Fort Worth area became home to many defense and government contractors even before World War II. Today, thanks to its strategic location and prominence as a dominant marketplace, Metroplex businesses, contractors, and vendors work on a wide variety of projects on a local, state, national and international scale.

Recognizing the potential for a career with high growth opportunity, Texas Wesleyan's School of Business Administration now offers a Bachelor of Business Administration degree with a concentration in Project Management.

"A key objective of the program," says Dr. Hector Quintanilla, Dean of the School of Business Administration, "is to provide the project management knowledge and skills students need to deliver improved productivity as soon as possible after gaining employment. This workforce readiness reduces training costs for employers and exemplifies the partnership between education and industry."

Specialized Knowledge in Government Contracting

Courses are included that help develop skills specific to government contracting. Contract Management includes the writing, negotiating and adhering to contracts, as well as legal and ethical considerations. Procurement, including writing, clarifying and communicating specifications is covered, with an emphasis on contract administration and dealing with subcontractors.

The Earned Value Management course focuses on developing an understanding and working knowledge of another key government process. EVM provides the tools to combine the measurement of scope, schedule, and cost into a single integrated system for monitoring project progress in an objective manner.

Experienced, Expert Faculty

Mr. John Murphey, Executive in Residence at Texas Wesleyan University, and Mr. Jimmy Woods, EVM consultant and trainer, will serve as faculty/instructors for the Contract Management and Earned Value Management courses respectively. "Managing projects for a government contractor requires a unique skill set," says Mr. Murphey. "I'm pleased to see a degree program addressing this issue and believe it's highly suited for the Dallas/Fort Worth area."

Mr. Murphey retired as CEO and Chair of Bell Helicopter Textron in 2004. His experience includes more than 40 years with Bell and other Textron companies in aerospace and defense related businesses.

Mr. Woods has 36 years of experience in Earned Value Management at Bell Helicopter. For the last year, he has been a consultant on this subject through KPMG to other Textron companies.

With expertise at this level, Wesleyan's business students will undoubtedly develop a new degree of confidence . . . and opportunity.
