Texas Wesleyan University recognizes staff excellence with new award

FORT WORTH, May 27 – Texas Wesleyan University has created a new award to recognize exemplarily staff: the “Senior Staff Award for Excellence,” a distinction that includes a $500 bonus. Honorees will be recognized each spring. This year’s recipients are Ken Dunson, director of facilities and security at the historic campus, John Gonzales, administrative assistant to the provost office at the historic campus, and Matt Pelligrino, operations technician at the school of law in downtown Fort Worth.

“The senior staff awards recognize the outstanding performance of the non-teaching staff at Texas Wesleyan whose service and accomplishments often get overlooked. I think the President’s Senior Staff wanted to take special action to recognize these individuals for their achievements,” says Texas Wesleyan University President Harold G. Jeffcoat.

Other nominees for the 2004 Senior Staff Award for Excellence are Karen Cole, Carole Stubbs and Kristi Taylor.
